Hello Sharon,

It has been a tough time for me recently for various reasons, work being one of them and I need some advice on what could be a life changing decision. I know I can count on you to offer the right advice.....

I've suspected for some time now that Marion has been having an affair. The usual signs, phone rings, I answer, someone hangs up.

She started going out 'with the girls' a lot recently although when I ask which girls it is always "Just some friends, you don't know them". She say.

I always look out for her taxi coming home but she always walks down the road although I can hear a car setting off. As if she has got out of the car round the corner. Why? Is it not a taxi?

We got back from holiday on Friday I picked her mobile up just to see what time it was and she went berserk and screamed that I should never touch her phone again and why, was I checking up on her.

Anyway, I have never approached the subject with Marion. I think deep down I just didn't want to know the truth but on Saturday night she went out again and I decided to check on her.

I decided I was going to hide behind my car which would give me a view of the whole street so I could see which car she gets out of when she gets home. It was whilst crouched behind the car that I noticed rust around my rear wheel arch.

So what do you think, Sharon or maybe Clayton could you advise me.

Should I take it into a body repair shop or should I buy some stuff from Halfords and try to repair it myself?

Love
Jerry
